

This was the screenshot that I included in the last attachment. Maybe it is hard to see that the graphic (yellow fill) actually only went to right side of the black line, and so everything left of the line should have been clipped.

In this screen shot you can better see what I am talking about. Notice in the now clipped raster that some of the old raster sticks out past the graphic (yellowed area.) the part that sticks out is bounded by the light blue line.

