

Our findings: issue 13

Participants found the interface inaccessible in places because of the size of the elements.

What we learned

The participants found some elements of the interface too small—mainly the drop-down arrows and the font size in the layers panel.

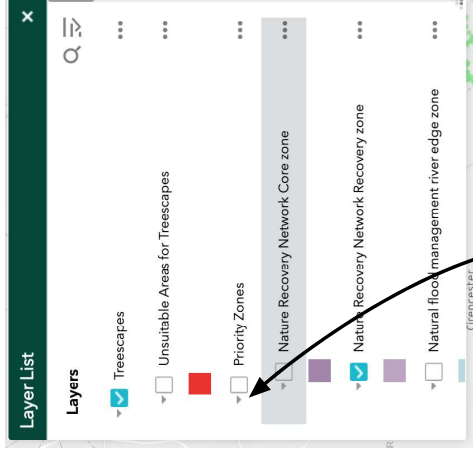

The indentation for each level is relatively small, making the layer structure difficult to see.

Proposed action

Increase the font size for all elements on the maps. The minimum font size for the base font on a website is 16px.

To improve the visibility of the drop-down arrow:

- increase the size
- increase the contrast (make the colour darker).

"They are quite small on my screen. I thought they were just bullet points."
